Board Chair’s Message

As set out in this 2016 Annual Report, The American College of Greece remains one of the shining examples of institutions in Greece that are performing extremely well despite the adverse economic climate that continues to grip Greece.

Our Board continues its evolution with the addition of Alexandra Papalexopoulou and Dena Haritos Tsamitis. These impressive new members join our all-volunteer Board of Trustees adding their excellent perspectives and skills to assist the College on its highest governing body. Our entire Board of diverse and highly qualified trustees wishes to thank the many years of excellent service and guidance from Ann Caldwell and Tas Parafestas, both of whom completed their Board terms in 2016. The Board has also begun its latest leadership evolution with the election of trustee Concetta Stewart to the position of Chair-Elect. Concetta will take over as Board Chair following our July 2017 regular meeting in Athens when my term as Chair and as a member of the Board will be completed.

As I approach the end of over ten years on the Board, and of nearly 40 uninterrupted years of my family’s membership on the Board, I am certain that the College will continue to advance to its 150th anniversary and beyond through developments that are only made possible by the dedication of our talented faculty and staff, the enthusiasm of our gifted students, and the generosity and devotion of our many alumni and friends like you.

Philip C. Korologos
Chair, Board of Trustees
The American College of Greece

President’s Message

This 2016 Annual Report follows the model introduced last year to highlight here evidence of accomplishment of ACG’s mission: To add distinctive and sustainable value to our students as well as Greece, American education, Hellenic heritage, and the global community through transformative teaching, scholarship and service.

As you peruse the Report you will find the evidence of mission accomplishment to be abundant. Indeed, now almost nine years into my ACG tenure, I am amazed at what the College has accomplished in a period dominated by Greece’s economic crisis. I am even more astounded at ACG’s potential for greater contribution in the future.

Much of the credit for another year of robust performance belongs to ACG’s expanding constituency of support. In addition to the trustees, faculty, staff, students, alumni, friends, corporations, foundations, and others who are featured throughout this Report, members of the President’s Cabinet deserve specific mention. I feel very fortunate to be surrounded by such dedicated and talented colleagues, who are taking ACG’s mission to new levels of achievement.

Another individual worthy of special mention is our Board Chair, Phil Korologos, who will complete his term in June. The legacy of unique Korologos family contribution to ACG extends over decades. Phil joined the Board in 2006, serving as Vice Chair (2009 – 2011) and Chair (2011 – 2017). He has led the Board and the College through tumultuous times and considerable change. We are indebted to Phil and thank him for making a difference in ways that will benefit ACG, students and society for years to come.

Alumni Stories

Athens Voice: Powered by Deree

In a unique collaboration, Deree undergraduate Communication, Marketing, Visual Arts, and Graphic Design students as well as members of the International Honors Program, Photography Club, and Deree Gazette, took to the streets with brand new titles – photographer, journalist, writer, visual artist – to explore Athens with fresh eyes! Street art and wildlife, neoclassical beauty and vintage newsstand anarchy, Athenian habits and creative hubs, the underground and the new-age crowd; all this and more can be found in the special “sweet thirteen” Athens Voice issue!

President Horner at TEDx Academy: “You do not need a spectacular economy or a perfect political system to develop world-class universities”

On October 1 the much anticipated TEDx Academy 2016 took place in the Megaron, the Athens Concert Hall. This year’s talks centered on the theme “Re-imagine Greece” featuring 18 speakers, including ACG President, Dr. David G. Horner. President Horner spoke to an audience of 1,400 in the second session of the day, titled “A Letter from the Future: Greece in 2030”, sending an optimistic – yet achievable – message from Greece’s transformed future, i.e. three universities in the world top 40. Greece’s bright educational future was built on three internationally benchmarked pillars:

- Institutional diversity and autonomy: “allowing students to select the institution that will bring out the best in them,” and relying on “international accreditation as the primary quality control mechanism, instead of bureaucratic government control.”
- Student choice and admission criteria: basing university entrance on students’ overall high school performance rather than the Panhellenic exams. “As a result, Greek families invest much less in expensive private tutoring, and students invest much more in the quality of their high school experience.”
- Philanthropy: “billions of euros flowed to Greek public and private universities, providing the margin of excellence Greece needed to rise in the university rankings.”

Deree's campaign “Invent yourself”, showcased the value of transformative education through engaging alumni stories.
