Never-ending cycles of mobility allow journey to exist for its own sake, and thus create a space in which identity, time, and place, are all deconstructed and reformed. The ensemble came together to create this devised piece from scratch, through active collaboration and physical play. What occurred from this practice is a ritual on the necessity of departure and a perpetual search: we search within us, we search in others, and we search around the world, hoping to arrive to something better than that which we must leave behind.
